To whom it may concern,

My name is Celina Watkins and I am interested in your graphic designer position. I am receiving a Bachelor of Design at Loyola University New Orleans with a minor in Art History. My creative skills expand from fine art to design, and this sets me apart from other people. I am proficient in technical programs, including the Adobe Suite, and I have strong drawing and illustration skills.

My first 3 years of design have included mostly school projects, ranging from motion design to illustration design. When I had extra time, I would collaborate with communication and journalism majors to create page layouts and editorial illustrations for The Maroon, Loyola's student-run paper. Working with other journalists has given me more patience, experience in design, and has helped in improving my communication skills. Outside of school, I would experiment with design and illustration to keep myself from feeling rusty, and keep the creative juices flowing. That being said, I am very creative, hard working, well organized, open minded, versatile, and enjoy collaborating and working with a team.

Currently, I am looking to gain more knowledge within the design field. The experience and opportunity this company could give me would be wonderful in improving my skills, and growing as a designer. I am happy to answer any questions or concerns you may have in regards to my resume or portfolio.

Thank you for taking the time to read this letter.

Sincerely,
Celina Watkins
